

I registered for the do not call list because I'm tired of being solicited for things I don't want. If I want to purchase some thing or a service I will go to where it is and do so. I don't want people interrupting my dinner or time with my family to have me purchase things or answer surveys. It makes me angry to think that marketing companies can insist on being able to contact people whenever they want. They should try a supermarket or mall to get their surveys done not my home.
